

Collie Flower Farm

Liz Cardella

815.337.4142

LCardella59@gmail.com

Collieflowerfarm.com

Newsletter
August 1, 2012

Petal Postings

Welcome flower friends!

I guess I am a fickle flower lover. About every two weeks I fall in love with a different flower. Like a lover I suppose I am influenced by who is "putting out" for me at the time. I prefer to think I am able to more fully appreciate each flower as it matures. This week I love Rudbeckia (Cherry Brandy).

Although all my Rudbeckia are beautiful with gorgeous color variations. The Cherry Brandy has matured into a real stunner! Look closely at the intense red color and I am so pleased to be getting longer stems on this flower.

I really enjoy making a beautiful bouquet for you each week. Please feel free to separate your large bouquet into smaller bunches. This is a way to highlight each flower and spread the color throughout your home. I make Cheri a special small arrangement in a coffee mug for her guest bathroom. I have (smalls) available in cute little mason jars at the Green Box Boutique on the Woodstock Square. At $6.00 they make excellent little hostess gifts.

We have Dahlias coming along so watch for them in your bouquet. Make sure you look into the Foxglove flower—how does Mother Nature do that?

In your Bouquet

Nigella Seed Pods

Foxglove

Statice

Zinnia

Rudbeckia— 4 types

Russian Sage

Hosta Leaves

Green Cone Flower (yellow not green)

Verbena Bonsarensis

Cherry Brandy—Right

